Apexogenesis vs apexification pdf

Rationale

- Poor long-term prognosis of endodontically treated immature teeth
- Relatively thin dentine in obturated canal of incompletely formed roots and open apices are at risk of fracture
- pulp revascularization and repair will more readily occur in teeth with a wide apical foramen
- pulp of immature teeth has a significant repair potential

CONTRAINDICATIONS

- Necrotic or non vital pulp

Apexification

- Definition : It is defined as a method to induce development of the root apex of an immature pulpless tooth by formation of osteocementum / bone like tissue. (Cohen)

Among the various methods used are the treatment of indirect pulp, direct tapping and partial removal of the pulp before holding. PMID: 29659350 free PMC article. 2005 Sep; 36 (8): 653-7. Trope M. 2010 Apr-Jun; 28 (2): 110-2. 2010. doi: 10.17305 / bhjms.2018.2841. 2018 May 20; 18 (2): 198-205. PMID: Review 2094860. doi: 10.1016 / j.cen.2009.12.006. The Apyogenesis aims to preserve the vitality of the pulp and promote the further development and strengthening of the roots. If this is not treated, the future treatment of the root canal will have a minimum success due to the difficulties in the sealing of the root apex. The degree of development of the teeth is an important consideration when it comes to young patients showing infected or damaged pulp. Cited by 1 article Dental caries affects dental development in children and adolescents? KG VELLORE. PMID: 16161469 The development of the root root continues: apyogenesis and appetification. TROPE M, DHAMO B, ELEZI B, KRAGT L, WOLVIUS EB, ONGKOSUWITO EM. 1978. The appetification is carried out by removing the necrotic pulp and covering it with drugs that promotes the growth of the fabric that serves to close the APEX. As the roots fail to grow further, the possibilities of fracture and loss of teeth increased. On the other hand, the appetification is performed when the pulp is necrotic and there is no possibility of further development of the main structure. After the root is fully developed, treatment is required with the conventional root channel to seal the apex, the main and side root channels. It aims to close the apex open with the development of a calcific barrier. Furthermore, the subtle dentine walls will increase the probability of teeth fracture.
